MOGNOLO

#Materials silver, pear wood

This pinkie ring is made of silver in the white and black version. The concept of the rings is inspired by geometry and volume at the Church of San Giovanni Battista in Mogno, Switzerland, designed by the architect Mario Botta. The sacredness of the architectural element is reflected in the jewel with the creation of two rings in solid silver in the form of a seal. Black and white follow the alternation of the two local materials with which the Church was built.

OMAGGIO AL BAUHAUS

Silver, pear wood #Materials

This piece is made of a pear wood box containing 7 hand-made 925 silver rings. On the occasion of the hundreth anniversary of the founding of the German avant-garde school, a tribute was paid to the movement that involved artists, architects, designers, graphic designers, artisans and photographers of the 20th century. Each ring is a small architecture that represents a letter of the name BAUHAUS and at the same time follows the simple geometries suggested by the modernist movement.
